I first dived into music recording back in 1997, buying my first set of microphones and portable 8-track to record demo tapes with local bands. Went on to study one year at Bollnäs Folkhögskola, Sweden, in 2000. Followed up education with a short internship at dB studios – Stroud, Gloucestershire.

When I came back to Sweden I went freelance as a live engineer for a couple of local venues. Mixed mostly rock, punk, hardcore and metal bands, but also a lot of pop and folk music. I got an internship at The Overlook in 2002, which later became a fulltime employment by the organisation that owned the studio. I was put in charge of their PA systems as well as the studio, and spent a good 8 years with them, before I came to the UK. I left Sweden to be closer to my family here in Gloucestershire, since I am half British.

My work in The Overlook has been diverse, not only in job-description but also in music. It's given me an extensive experience with all genres and instruments. Yet at the same time, because of my own musical career, my work has been somewhat focused on the heavier stuff. I'm also a touring and recording drummer in a grindcore band called Gadget, a few releases down the line and signed to American Relapse Records.

Along side with my work at The Overlook I have kept freelancing through out the years. Some work being "online" mixing for metal labels, but also engineering for Dither Music, more specifically for producer Mattias Beijmo. This has been with projects in his own studio Grounds for Divorce, Gävle, but also in Svenska Grammofonstudion, Gothenburg, Kingside, Stockholm and The Pool, London.
